MALIGNE LAKE

"There are a score of lakes which, once seen, hold their place in the heart forever. Yet this stands out among them all. The composition forms one picture, but into it has gone enough beauty to make a dozen regions famous A natural amphitheatre, circling about are more than a score of glorious peaks, silver gray, tawny or snow crowned, a company of Alpine Titans Flung high over their airy battlements hang more than twenty glaciers which sweep down to the thick masses of green forest. Everywhere one looks some commanding mass meets the eye. Great towers face in all directions, presenting almost every type of mountain architecture, culminating at the head of the lake in snowfields and glaciers of dazzling purity."
